Testimonial for Rex Heng

I had the pleasure of working with Rex during his internship at Boeing Singapore, where he made significant and impactful contributions across multiple areas from 6 July to 21 August 2026.

During his six weeks with us, Rex spearheaded efforts supporting Artificial Intelligence (AI) adoption in Southeast Asia, playing a key role in advancing Boeing's government relations and business development initiatives throughout ASEAN and among our broader stakeholders. His proactive approach and clear understanding of the region's unique landscape were invaluable to the team.

In addition, Rex helped map out Boeing's AI ecosystem by identifying critical tools, stakeholders, and points of contact. He took the initiative to conduct self-driven meetings with teams such as IT, DevOps, and the Chief Artificial Intelligence Office, as well as one-on-one sessions with various team members. This thorough groundwork enabled Rex to share valuable insights with the Boeing Global team, strengthening our AI strategy and collaboration efforts.

Beyond AI, Rex contributed significantly to Boeing Global Engagement, our corporate citizenship and philanthropy arm. He played a crucial role in preparing for the US-ASEAN Business Council Philippines Business Mission and coordinated engagement with multiple American Chambers of Commerce across Southeast Asia.

Rex also supported Caroline Geubelle, Chief of Staff for the Asia Pacific International Business Development BDS team, serving as a technical lead to reduce the administrative burden surrounding airshows and executive engagements. He built working prototypes in hours rather than weeks, enabling the team to test ideas against real processes instead of debating them in the proposal stage, and presented the work audience ranging from managers to executives. He stayed engaged through each round of feedback, anchoring a redesign that could save in-country teams hours of work per airshow.

Rex also worked closely with the Managing Director for Indonesia and the strategy team, providing consistent support on various projects. Through these engagements, he enhanced his administrative skills and demonstrated excellent teamwork and collaboration, proving himself to be a dependable and valued team player.

Rex's initiative, technical skills, and collaborative spirit have left a strong, positive impact on our organization. I am confident his experience and talents will contribute greatly to his future endeavors.
